International Society for Psychological and Social Approaches to Psychosis

The International Society for Psychological and Social Approaches to Psychosis (ISPS) Australia aims to further the understanding of psychosis, promoting psychological and social approaches to psychosis and advancing the education and knowledge of all those who value the importance of supporting people who experience psychosis. It was incorporated in 2013 and is part of a broader international organisation that is over 50 years old.

We aim to join together Australians who have an interest in the importance of psychological and social approaches to psychosis so we can ensure that those who experience psychosis or extreme states get the support and understanding they need to make sense of their experience and move through it effectively.

We hope to reach all people who have a stake in psychosis research and therapeutic support – this encompasses people with lived experience, academics, mental health professionals, family members, friends and anyone who is interested in this area.

Since beginning in Australia, we have presented and co-sponsored a number of events showcasing the work of leaders in this field.

Support us to continue promoting psychological and social approaches to psychosis - see our website for more information at- www.isps.org.au

Collaboration, collegiality and co-production

ISPS Australia is interested in joining with / supporting others who have an interest in furthering psychological and social approaches to 'psychosis' and whose aims are aligned with our purpose.

This may include: 1) presenting at each other's conferences or events, 2) advertising on each other's promotional material, 3) issuing joint statements to media or 4) joint activities, events or research initiatives.

We also wish to aid small organisations and collectives to progress shared aims. To this end, we are offering the ISPS Australia Small Grants Program (SGP). Download an application from our website in the "ISPS Board Documents" section or email us at info@isps.org.au

to further the understanding of psychological and social approaches to psychosis and advance education, research and knowledge through sharing information about innovative approaches used by mental health professionals who work genuinely, creatively and transparently with people who experience extreme states (sometimes known as psychosis).
